SECTION 2: ADVANCED PICKUP LINES

How to Write Custom Pickup Lines Based on Her Profile

These canned pickup lines should help you initiate playful conversations with your matches. But if you really want to bring your openers to the next level, you should use custom lines that are tailored to her profile. That's why we've created:

1. Overpowered Openers

OP Openers are "types" of first messages that are battle tested and get responses. Here are two examples:

- Teases - "Damn, you didn't strike me as the type of girl who's into golf."
- Challenge - "Says her music taste is unique - but listens to T Swift."

There are a number of OP Openers, each with its own template where you can plug in an observation from her profile.

2. Overpowered Opener Templates

- Challenge - playfully challenge her to make her reply back with confidence.
 - I hate to break it to ya name, but I would probably beat you at XYZ ;)
 - I just hope you have/can/are XYZ...
 - My mom told me not to talk to girls who XYZ
 - What are the odds you don't like XYZ but thought it'd be a good pic lol
- Disqualification - Find something you dislike and lean into it playfully.
 - Damn, you're into XYZ. We'll have to work on that.
 - Cute, [hair color], but into XYZ... I knew you were too good to be true.
 - Into XYZ... hopefully you're open to converting.
 - Into XYZ? Don't worry, we'll make an ABC of you eventually
- Tease - Playfully poke fun at her. But don't be insulting.
 - It's not basic at all that you like XYZ... ;)
 - I didn't know people were into XYZ anymore...

- I would've known you were XYZ even if you didn't put it on your profile
- Relating to her - Find commonality and create an "us against the world" vibe.
 - And I thought I was the only one who cared about XYZ.
 - Thank God, finally someone I can XYZ with
 - Are you actually into XYZ? That's gotta be too good to be true.
- Assumption - Assume what her overall vibe is and then make a stereotype.
 - I bet you spend most of your free time doing XYZ.
 - You didn't strike me as the type of girl who'd be into XYZ
 - Tell me you're into XYZ without telling me you're into XYZ
- Leading question - Ask a question that creates curiosity and demands a response.
 - Is it true what they say about girls who are XYZ?
 - You're cute, [hair color], and XYZ... But what's the catch?
 - Ahhh, a girl who XYZ. I know your type.
- Buyer frame - Establish a frame where she has to prove herself to you.
 - Are you a fake fan or are you actually into XYZ?
 - I'm kinda impressed you're XYZ... Green flag, [Name].
 - The fact that you XYZ is kinda a red flag ngl
- Innuendo - Use a cheeky innuendo that leaves the door open for her to sexualize.
 - If you were going for the kinky XYZ vibe in that one pic, it worked
 - I heard that girls who XYZ are pretty freaky... Are the rumors true?
 - Into XYZ...? You're going to be trouble

These next OP Openers are a bit more advanced and hard to make a general template. But this should give you an idea of how you can use them:

- Funny hypothetical - Come up with a funny activity or theory based on her profile.
 - "Let's recreate that third picture, but I'm the ATV."
- Playful Misinterpretation - Intentionally misinterpret something in her profile playfully.
 - "Your profile says you love dogs - hopefully you'll date tall blondes too."

KEEP IN MIND - ideally every OP Opener can be 100% made from scratch, but some lend themselves more to templates than others. So while these templates are a good starting point, feel free to get creative and create your own openers with the underlying principles.

For example, you could also use a Challenge opener by saying "Bet I have more tattoos than you" if she talks about loving tattoos in her bio. Get creative and have fun with it!

What makes these openers OP is that they're custom to each girl, but at the same time you're not coming up with them from scratch completely - you're making genuine observations but then plugging them into types of openers we already know work.

3. The Overpowered Openers Framework (OOPS)

Coming up with a creative opener that is custom to her profile can be hard. That's why we've broken this framework into a simple 4 step process:

1. Observation
2. Overpowered Opener
3. Pair
4. Send

When I try to craft a lethal opener, these are the steps I follow:

- 1. OBSERVATION - I start by scanning through her profile to see what stands out to me.
 - The things I usually look for are subjective interests like music, TV shows, food choices, and hobbies. Since they're subjective, they're safe to be playful about.
 - What is she wearing? What activities does she enjoy? What vibe does she give off? I dead-ass write down a few things if I need to. This doesn't take me that long.
- 2. OVERPOWERED OPENERS - I then write out (but don't send) a few Overpowered Openers. I want to see which OP Openers I can pair with one of my observations to craft that perfect first message.
 - A simple Overpowered Opener is "disqualification" where you take an observation and then shit-test her on it. The first OP Opener I try to pair an observation with is always disqualification.
 - Disqualification Openers use the following format:
 - "XYZ? Hopefully we can change that."
 - "You like XYZ... think we might have to break up."
 - "Damn, fan of XYZ... we need to have a talk."
 - But experiment with other OP opener types so you have a few solid options to work with
- 3. PAIR - Now that I have a solid selection of opening lines to work with, I choose the observation + OP Opener pairing that is the best fit, and plug the observation into the general structure of the OP Opener.
- 4. SEND - Lastly, I just send the damn message.

Infield Example:

- OBSERVATIONS - I notice she's got a YETI water bottle in a hiking pic
- OP OPENERS - I like hiking too, and I only use hydro flasks, so I can easily pair this observation with a disqualification OP Opener template. For example:
 - A yeti girl? This won't work... I'm a hydro flask guy. (DISQUALIFICATION)
 - And I thought I was the only one who enjoyed hiking (RELATING TO HER)
 - Is it true what they say about girls who like nature? (LEADING QUESTION)
- PAIR - I find the best observation + OP opener pair that fits perfectly. In this case, I plug my observation (bolded below) into a disqualification OP Opener:
 - A yeti girl? This won't work... I'm a hydro flask guy
- SEND - send that message over and enjoy the playful chat you've just started.

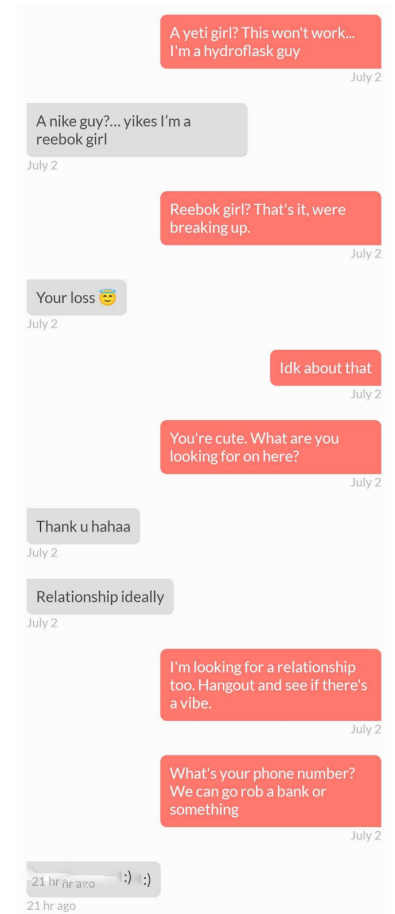

Once you have a toolbox of OP Openers to use, all you need are observations to plug and play - most guys can't come up with a list of OP Openers types from scratch, but any guy can look at a profile, make observations and then plug and play. And it's simple when you follow the OOPS Framework.

Ready to Level Up on Dating Apps?

This free guide should give you a huge head start - especially since most guys open with "Hey", "What's up", or 'job interview questions' as described above.

With that said, no pickup line is going to give you a 100% response rate. The fact is, the majority of women use Dating Apps for attention, validation, and to alleviate boredom.

You could have the most mind-blowing pickup line ever, and only 50% of girls may respond to it. From there, even fewer of them will carry on a conversation and fewer will share your intentions to date. Dating Apps are a numbers game. The larger your initial pool of matches, the more qualified dates you'll secure.

The best way to maximize that pool of matches is to optimize your profile. Tinder will try to sell you Boosts and Tinder Gold, but neither of those services can fix a profile that is turning girls away.

The fact is, most men are making common mistakes that women view as Red Flags. And because girls are so picky, they aren't looking for the good things in your profile. They're looking for one reason to swipe left.

Every photo on your profile and line in your bio is an opportunity for rejection. If you want to remove rejection from the equation and start getting matches overnight, you can download my Ultimate Dating Profile Guide here.
